

LabCulture

3 months online at LabCulture

Send your weekly reflections plus examples of your work in progress and developing practice and we'll place it on the LabCulture website over a 3 month period.

At the end of 3 months there will be an informal online event.

During the 3 months we will direct our widespread friends and associates to watch the projects and engage in dialogue.

Some weeks you may not have much to send. At the end of 3 months your project may not resolve into a completed piece of work – that's ok. We ask for enthusiasm. We encourage you to communicate with your fellow participants and build constructive relationships and exchange ideas.

How to proceed

To apply send a proposal for a project on one side of A4 outlining ideas you would like to explore and new work you wish to develop. We welcome the addition of a CV or artist's statement.

Please email this to gus.cummins@blueyonder.co.uk

Supporting material may be attached as URL, QuickTime, jpg, PowerPoint or MP3.

Conditions

We ask for your consent to archive your project and keep it online at the end of the 3 months. In time we will develop a valuable history of past projects, and a community of past participants to offer their input to future online activity.

Artists from all disciplines who are based in the UK can apply.

The project is being managed by Gus Cummins for PVA MediaLab.

PVA MediaLab

PVA MediaLab is a dedicated artist-led space which supports creativity and research, nurtures artists and engages with local and wider communities. The studio is a process-oriented environment which supports experimental and practice-based research. We offer support to multi-disciplinary projects and diverse artists/new media practitioners, particularly those investigating new areas in their practice. Conversation and debate is central to our ethos and facilitated through peer critique and a presentation programme.
